Professor D. Hill,
Department of Geology,
University of Queensland,
ST. LUCIA.

Dear Professor Hill,

From an examination of the records of the University, it would appear that the duties and responsibilities of a Research Professor have not been defined.

In 1949 when the continuation of the grade of Associate Professor was under consideration, the committee which had been appointed to consider that matter resolved:

1. That the grade of Research Professor, equivalent to that of the present Associate Professorships, be established, and that appointment to the position be confined to persons who have, by their outstanding scholarship or researches, attained a distinguished reputation in some field of learning; and
2. That a Research Professor may be required by the Head of his Department to devote a limited amount of time to teaching duties.

This resolution was approved by the Senate on 4th August, 1949.

I hope that this information will be of some assistance to you.

Yours sincerely,

(C.J. Connell)
Registrar.

Dear Sir,

I understand from the Registrar that the duties and responsibilities of a Research Professor with full professorial status have not been defined.

May I therefore be favoured with an interview with you, so that I might receive an outline of what is desired?

I have of course my own ideas of how I would like to serve the University in this capacity, and would be very grateful if I might discuss them with you.
